I clean the stables here. It's a tough job, but somebody has to do it. And besides I really like it, keeps me outdoors and all.

Eli, I mean... the Master, has been making changes this past week. That Census has turned this town around. Old little town of Bethlehem is not lying so still these days. They say we will have people by the thousands coming into town.

Foreigners, I am sure. And probably not Jewish either! We always have a problem with the food with those foreigners. Our food is Kosher, so they always ask for pork, they think it's funny.

We supply sheep to the temple. It is a side job for the Inn when business is slow. And it has been slow. That is why I am in the stable most of the time. I tend the sheep when I am not tending to the guests. Lots of sheep... funny how you get used to the smell. But those shepherds... They're the ones you have to worry about.

Well, I need to go. I've been told to spread extra straw in the parking lot. There'll be a lot traveling by Camel, I'm sure.

Camels... now that is a smell you never get used to.
